Superintendent of education pleads guilty to felony

By BRENT MACEY
Hancock County School Superintendent Billy D. Sills, 47, pled guilty to charges of embezzlement-fraud Wednesday in the Hancock County Courthouse. As a result he will automatically be removed from office.

In addition, he was placed on three years probation and ordered to pay $9,000 restitution to the Hancock County School Board within 30 days.

A five year prison sentence was suspended by Circuit Court Judge Kosta Vlahos who agreed with the state's recommended punishment of a fine and probation.

The maximum fine, according to Vlahos, is 10 years in prison plus a $5,000 fine.

District Attorney Albert Necaise, who recommended the sentence, noted Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson, Bobby Parker, of the State Highway Patrol, and Ray Burris of the Mississippi Ethics Committee—all involved in the investigation which led to Sills' indictment last April—agreed to the recommended sentence by the state.

Sills had been indicted on charges of 'inducement to award a contract' to Bay Contractors, a contractor hired by the Hancock County School Board to repair Gulfview Elementary School after it was damaged by a tornado in May of 1980.

Bay Contractors was hired under emergency measures which allowed the school board not to advertise the job to receive bids.

Just as Sills appeared in the courtroom, Necaise requested the charge be changed to 'embezzlement-fraud while in public office.'

The new charge was accepted by Vlahos who asked Sills if he was aware that he was waiving his constitutional rights to a jury trial by pleading guilty.

Before accepting the plea of guilty from Sills, Vlahos stated, "I must be sure that you are pleading guilty because you are guilty," he said. He told Sills, "You must convince me that you are guilty."

A petition submitted by Sills' attorney Richard Dymond of Gulfport stated the reason Sills offered a plea of guilty was 'because I (Sills) accepted county money for my use and benefit.'

Vlahos said he only knew that $7,500 was involved in the charges.

He requested Sills to be specific about where that money came from.

Sills, who showed no emotion during the plea, explained, "The first time Mr. Rippetoe (Robert Rippetoe, president of Bay Contractors) came to my house he put down a $1,000 on the table and said 'This is for you.'"

"I put the money in my savings account," Sills continued. "I think this went on for seven weeks."

Although Vlahos questioned Sills about why Rippetoe allegedly gave him the money, Sills replied the reason was 'never discussed.'

Vlahos then questioned Necaise concerning the type of case which the state had against Mr. Sills.

Necaise informed Vlahos that the case was based on 'strong circumstantial evidence.'

Necaise noted that payments from the school board to Rippetoe coincided with deposits made in the Sills accounts 'within 72 hours' of the time Rippetoe was given a payment.

According to Necaise Sills deposited $1,000 on the following dates: May 28, June 5, June 10, July 13, and July 20.

On July 2, Sills also deposited $500. Necaise said the state was unable to find any other way for Sills to have obtained the money other than to have accepted it from Rippetoe.

Law officers address chamber directors

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Chief law enforcement officers addressed the directors of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Tuesday on the problems faced by the departments in the county.

Hancock Sheriff Ronald Peterson, Bay Police Chief Douglas Williams, and Waveland Police Chief Donald Dorn all emphasized the problems caused by drinking drivers.

Peterson said, "Drugs are the number one problem in the county. We recently made a survey of the inmates housed in the county jail, (also used by the Bay and Waveland police departments), and 30 of the 33 were drug related cases."

"Most would say, I was high on drugs when I burglarized the home, attempted the rape, or robbed the person," Peterson added.

The sheriff noted he was the first narcotics officer in the county ten years ago and how it was a serious matter for a person to have a 'lid' of marijuana in possession.

He continued, "Today we are dealing with tons of marijuana, it is definitely on a bigger scale as we are having a lot of 'pushing' and 'smuggling' in our area. A big crack-down in Florida has caused the big operators to move to the Mississippi Gulf Coast and we do not have enough men to cover it all."

Williams charged parents, teachers, and lay people as being partially to blame for a lot of young people involved in drugs and alcohol. The chief stated, "We go to a fair, and we have many of them here, you see the adults drinking, smoking and carrying on. What kind of an example is that for our young people?"

"We have to set the example, we as parents have to change. Another problem, teachers cannot correct a child. It wasn't too many years ago when a teacher could, but today if a teacher tries to correct a child, they have to deal with the parent," Williams allowed.

Chief Dorn talked on how shoplifting is on the increase in Waveland. He said, "Shoplifting affects everyone of us, and to show you how it is increasing, during 1981 we had 22 arrests, and for only six months this year we have already 23 arrests."

"The professional shoplifter makes his living in reselling what he has stolen for probably half of the value. The majority of the shoplifters use the money to purchase drugs and alcohol," Dorn added.

Dorn did say marijuana arrests had been dropping in Waveland for the first six months of the year.

A discussion was held about the new drunk driving laws in Mississippi and how effective it seems to be.

When questioned on his opinion of Neighborhood Watches, Dorn said he felt they could be a big help to law enforcement agencies.

L.J. Breslux, president of the chamber, asked what way could lawmen be helped in the problem of drugs, with Peterson saying, "We need more drug enforcement agents, there are not enough in the coast. Organized crime is taking the big amounts of drugs and they are the little people are caught. The big boys are owning and also airplanes are using Beach Airport."

Navocean's unique magnetic measuring aircraft visits home base

Navy aircraft measures Earth's magnetic field

One of the most unique aircraft flying today visited the Biloxi-Gulfport Regional Airport this week.

This one-of-a-kind RP-3D Orion Lockheed Electra survey aircraft, which measures the earth's magnetic field, made a visit to its "home office" — the U.S. Naval Oceanographic Office, located at the National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County.

The aircraft is a key part of the program known as Project Magnet, and is based at the Patuxent River Naval Air Station in Maryland.

As an integral part of the continuing project of the Naval Oceanographic Office since 1953, Project Magnet aircraft have flown more than 45 million nautical track miles to conduct airborne geomagnetic surveys of all accessible oceans of the world to improve navigational and magnetic charts.

The aircraft is specially programmed with the Geomagnetic Airborne Survey System (GASS) — a dual computer system with sufficient flexibility to ensure a world-wide operational capability for the Project Magnet mission.

GASS uses several subsystems to provide accurate inflight position data to be correlated with magnetic data collected.

Geophysicists and other scientific and technical personnel of the Naval Oceanographic Office reduce Project Magnet data to mathematical values.

These data are combined with information from ground magnetic observations and other magnetic survey operations to produce a series of world aeronautical, nautical, and isomagnetic charts.

These U.S. Naval Oceanographic charts and related technical reports are used by ships and aircraft, military and commercial.

The U.S. Naval Oceanographic Office, located at NSTL since 1977, operates 12 oceanographic ships and three aircraft in discharging its globe-spanning responsibilities.

Cedar Point sewer line repaired, pollution to linger

By BRENT MACEY

A sewer break in the Cedar Point area of Bay St. Louis was repaired by Saturday of last week following four days of work by Southland Enterprises of Gulfport.

The break was declared an emergency by the Bay St. Louis City Council last week after a technician from the Mississippi Bureau of Pollution Control in Gulfport discovered some 100 to 150 gallons of raw sewage was being pumped out of the break every minute.

The break was located in a swampy area of Cedar Point behind Hancock

General Hospital. The swamp drains into a bayou which flows into Bay of St. Louis near the Bay Waveland Yacht Club.

Bill Johnson, head of the Bay St. Louis Utility Department, stated Monday that Southland Enterprises replaced some 216 feet of the old asbestos concrete pipe with ductile iron pipe.

He said he discovered a second leak in the pipe some 100 feet from the first leak.

"We made a cost comparison and found it would be cheaper to replace the pipe," Johnson said.

At a meeting at Bay City Hall where the leak was declared an emergency Johnson noted he was surprised that the asbestos concrete pipe was ever laid in that swamp.

According to Johnson, that asbestos concrete pipe is rarely used for sewer main pipe and has a greater chance of leaking once installed.

He said Monday that the new type of pipe is bolted together at the joints whereas the old type of pipe is joined with a collar lined with a rubber gasket. No bolts hold the joints together.

Johnson said two thirds of the original pipe, laid some time in the late 1960's, is still in the swamp.

When questioned about the possibility of future leaks Johnson said, "Anywhere there is a weak spot a leak could develop."

He noted replacing the old leaking section of pipe with a new iron line will increase the pressure on the remaining sections of pipe.

Joe Captain, of the Bureau of Pollution Control in Gulfport, claimed the bay could purify itself of any raw sewage within two weeks of the line being repaired.

However, he estimated the swamp may take some two years to clear up due to stagnant waters in the area.

Oxygen, needed to break down the pollutants, is only supplied to the swampy area by tidal action.

"When there's no oxygen you're looking at an oxygen depletion problem that could take a long time to cure itself," he said.

Captain claimed an abnormally cold winter or heavy rainfall would help feed oxygen to the bayou and swamp area and thus expedite the purification process.

Stolen funeral car found in Waveland

A Riemann Funeral Home car, stolen during a funeral at the Riemann chapel in Long Beach last Thursday, was found abandoned in Waveland Saturday morning.

The four-door 1982 Cadillac was not damaged and no one has been arrested in connection with the theft, said Investigator Ron Schauer of the Long Beach Police Department.

Funeral home officials determined that the car had been driven about 500 miles since it was stolen around 10:45 a.m. Thursday.

The car was taken from the driveway at the chapel on Jeff Davis Avenue.

The keys had been left in the vehicle, police said.

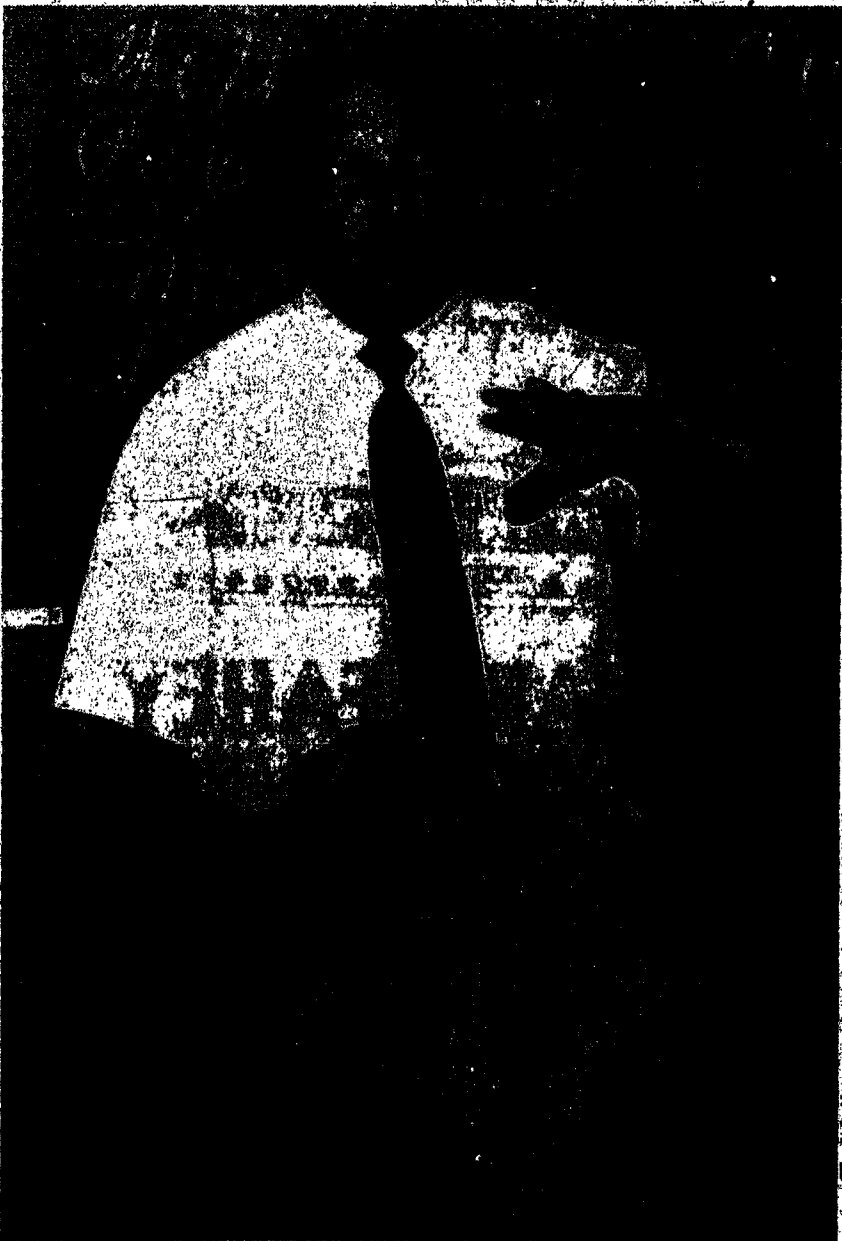

A witness told officers that the car, draped to await a funeral procession, was taken by a white male who appeared to be 45 to 50 years old, about 5 feet, 7 inches tall.

The car was recovered by Waveland police at the Waveland Resort Inn where a witness said it had been parked since late Friday night.

Robbery, assault charges bring 20-year sentences

A Slidell, La. man was sentenced Tuesday to serve 20 years in the Mississippi State Penitentiary at Parchman by Judge Kosta N. Vlahos in Hancock County Circuit Court.

George B. Smith, 22, was charged with robbing and shooting 70-year-old James V. Cuevas in the stump of one of his amputated legs last Jan. 5 in Cuevas' home in Waveland.

Smith pleaded guilty to charges of armed robbery and aggravated assault in the courtroom, where he appeared under heavy guard, his legs shackled.

Since Smith's capture after a jail escape earlier this month, he has been held in the Harrison County Jail in Biloxi, where facilities are more secure than those in Hancock County.

Vlahos handed down 20-year sentences, to run concurrently, on each charge.

Aggravated assault sentence suspended

By BRENT MACEY

Randy Lyons, 23, of Bay St. Louis, accused of aggravated assault in connection with a stabbing last October in Bay St. Louis, pleaded guilty to the charge in Circuit Court Monday.

Judge Kosta Vlahos, suspended an eight-year sentence in the Mississippi State Department of Corrections and placed Lyons on parole for three years. Lyons, who is a bricklayer by trade, was also ordered to repair the exterior of the Stone County Courthouse during weekends.

Restitution to Arnold Fairconnet, 26, of Bay St. Louis was set to be determined before Friday of this week.

According to testimony by Fairconnet, a fight broke out Oct. 25 between himself and Lyons on the corner of St. Francis Street and Sycamore.

Fairconnet stated he was driving a car behind a car occupied by Lyons and his sister when he noticed his sister and Lyons were arguing.

Attempts to separate the two led to a fight. He claimed he was stabbed as he walked to his car after the fight was over.

In other action Monday, Nelson Crocodile, Lee Paul Cook, and Randall Goodick III, all plead guilty to charges of armed robbery.

Vlahos requested a pre-sentence report be prepared before sentencing. He noted the charge carries a minimum of three years in the state penitentiary.

Testimony by the three former Hancock County residents now in their late teens and early twenties, revealed the armed robbery was suggested by Crocodile who was working at the station at the time.

Cook and Goodick allegedly waited until Crocodile was changing duty with a woman working at the station. Cook allegedly entered the station with a pistol, pointed the weapon at Crocodile and the woman, and demanded money totalling $2,884.

Cook was arrested that same evening by Hancock County Investigator Alvin Ladner who spotted Cook at Popeye's Fried Chicken that same evening.

Ladner said a police bulletin broadcast earlier in the evening fit Cook's description.

While being arrested, Ladner also discovered a small amount of marijuana in the trunk of Cook's car.

Cook also pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana. Both Crocodile and Goodick were arrested shortly afterward.

PRC dorms waitlisted

All six Pearl River College dormitories are filled for the fall semester and a waiting list has been started, according to Miller Hammill, dean of student affairs.

"We've dealt with this problem before," said Hammill, "in fact, we have filled the resident halls and had lists the past several years."

PRC has three male and three female air-conditioned dormitories which can house 505 students.

Hammill said that in the past, students on the waiting list usually had a room soon after school began.

"Several rooms will open up because of cancellations or no-shows," Hammill said.

Hammill attributed the tremendous demand for college housing to the nation's economy, more interest in Pearl River College and because of increased campus activities for students.

The early filling of the resident halls is also a good indication that Pearl River could have another record enrollment. "All indications point to the fact that we will have another tremendous year," Hammill said.

Room assignments have been made for the fall term. "We've done the best job possible in assigning students to the dorms and roommates they requested," Hammill said, "however, several students were given second and third choices."

PAINFUL STIFF NECKS

Dr. Wm. L. Powell

The muscles of the neck become spastic, stiff and painful in movement. These attacks are usually sudden in occurrence, such as upon arising in the morning, from bed, a sudden twist or jar, or fall or even drafts, excessive and strenuous work may bring on such a condition. Research in our field shows that people are susceptible to these conditions because of a lack of underlying spinal problem. One that may have been present over a period of time without symptoms, but by which the stability of the spinal column that, at the right moment, involvement with a fall or twist brings about acute pains in the neck or back! These conditions are best cared for by a complete examination and spinal x-rays to determine the exact cause and best approach for the utilization of chiropractic adjustments to assure prompt relief and correction.

Waveland tot's services held

Funeral services for Samantha Faye, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Faye of Waveland, were Tuesday at 2 p.m. at the Riemann Funeral Home in Bay St. Louis.

The child died in Sunday evening in Gulfport Memorial Hospital from injuries sustained when she ran into the path of an oncoming vehicle on North Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis at approximately 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

A police spokesman said that an eyewitness reported the accident could not be avoided.

Raymond Wagner of Louisiana, was the driver of the vehicle.

No charges have been filed.

The Fays were apparently fishing at the intersection of North Beach Boulevard and Dumbat Avenue when the little girl decided to go to their truck which was parked across the street.

GENERAL WARRANTY DEED

QUESTION: I am interested in buying a home that my wife and I like very much. The seller has agreed upon a selling price but has said he will only give us a quitclaim deed. Do you foresee any problems with accepting a quitclaim deed? A. B. Corin

ANSWER: Dear A. B.:

The seller of a piece of real estate normally gives the buyer a general warranty deed, so you as a potential buyer should view an offer of a quitclaim deed with caution.

Anyone can sign a quitclaim deed for any piece of property and makes no representation or warranties of title.

The deed simply conveys the rights of the signing party without guaranteeing that the signing party has any rights at all.

A person giving a quitclaim deed releases and waives all present rights, and if the grantor (seller) has good and marketable title, this is what is conveyed.

If the grantor actually has no interest in the property, no interest is conveyed.

However, if the grantor later acquires good title to the property previously conveyed by a quitclaim deed, the grantor keeps it; it is not automatically passed on to the grantee (buyer).

A quitclaim deed has legitimate uses. For example, suppose a particular parcel of real estate belonged to a person who died without leaving a will.

If that person's heirs all agree to relinquish any possible claims on the land to the deceased person's son or daughter, then they can execute a quitclaim deed in favor of the son or daughter.

A general warranty deed contains covenants in which the grantor formally guarantees that good and marketable title is being conveyed. Such a deed gives the buyer legal recourse against the seller in the event that the title is not as represented.

This deed provides the purchaser the greatest number of assurances and is considered the most desirable type of deed which can be received.

You may want to insist on such a deed before buying the property in question. In any event, seek legal counsel before signing any agreement to buy the property.

For answers to your questions, write Dr. Dennis Tosh, P.O. Box 295, University, MS 38677.

Money Talk

By Norine Barnes

For months we have been hearing more and more about how wonderful Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs) are, and they are big news.

They were originally created by the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, to permit wage earners who were not covered by a pension plan where they worked to create their own pension plans.

Now, as a result of the Economic Recovery Act of 1981, anyone who earns income may contribute to an IRA without paying federal income taxes until retirement (when most people will be in a lower tax bracket.)

Under the Act, you may invest in an IRA a maximum of $2,000 or 100 percent of your taxable compensation for the year, whichever is less. If you have a nonworking husband or wife, the limit is raised to $2,250.

If both husband and wife are wage earners, each may contribute every year up to $2,000 or 100 percent of their own compensation for the year, whichever is less.

You may wonder just what constitutes "compensation." It may be wages, tips, fees, bonuses, commissions, and net income from self-employment, and other money earned for providing personal services. Compensation is not unearned income, such as income from rentals or from stocks and bonds.

If you are considering an IRA—and most working Americans will probably find it to their advantage to set one up—here are some points to keep in mind:

—Don't become mesmerized by all the advertisements telling you how easy it is to become a millionaire upon retirement, and all you have to do is open an IRA with a certain financial institution for a certain number of years.

Many of those ads fail to mention that their millionaire predictions may be based on unrealistic assumptions.

You would have to make maximum contributions consistently for a period of at least 30 years while interest rates remained high. Even if the millionaire status materializes, $1 million wouldn't be worth nearly as much as it is today.

—At least six different major financial institutions are offering IRA plans. These include commercial banks, savings and loans, mutual funds, insurance companies, stock brokers, and credit unions. They offer a variety of investment choices, interest rates, minimum deposit requirements, initial and annual charges, transfer fees, payment increments, and withdrawal penalties.

Since conditions vary considerably, you should investigate all the options carefully before opening an account (most institutions have people to advise you.) In selecting your IRA, keep in mind the degree of security and risk you are willing to take, especially in terms of your age and retirement needs.

Financial institutions offer government insurance, while brokerage firms, which can provide greater flexibility and variety in investments, tend to be riskier.

—You may invest as little as $5 (in some cases) or as much as $2,000 in an IRA, and you do not have to make regular payments.

You should keep in mind the desirability of putting the entire $2,000 in your account some time before the date for filing your 1982 tax return.

That is the only way the entire authorized amount will be deducted from your 1982 taxable income.

—If you die, the money will be distributed to your beneficiaries. In any case, since income taxes will have to be paid on the amount withdrawn.

In addition, if you withdraw IRA funds from a certificate of deposit before it matures, you may have to pay an additional penalty for each withdrawal, depending on the rules of the institution where you have your IRA.

—You may begin collecting on your IRA as soon as you reach age 59½, but you may continue to contribute until you reach age 70½, at which time you must begin collecting.

You have until you file your 1982 tax return in 1983 to open an IRA or make a contribution to one and you will get a 1982 tax deduction.

Q. Almost every time I go shopping I see a car somebody's left running in a parking lot. How much gas does this waste?

A. We can't turn up a specific amount for you. The amount would differ with the type of car and engine and how well maintained the car is. A related piece of information, taken from tests by automobile manufacturers is that anytime a car idles for longer than 30 seconds the idling uses more gas than turning the key off and re-starting the engine would.

What this means is that when you're in a long line at a drive-through bank window or when you're waiting for someone to finish a doctor's appointment or leave school, turning the engine off will save fuel.

As for those cars left running in the parking lot, you might write a note to stick under the windshield wiper "When your car is left idling, it gets zero miles per gallon of gas."

Q. I need to replace a gasoline storage tank on my farm. What should I look for in a new one?

A. The most efficient type of tank is one that's installed underground. Underground tanks are safer for people working around them and they help cut down on the amount of gasoline that's lost through evaporation.

If you decide you prefer an above ground tank — they are easier to install — find a shady location for it. Also choose one that's painted a light color so that some of the sun's heat is reflected back out of the tank. The shading is important because tanks in the sun can lose 75 percent more gasoline through evaporation than those in the shade.

Finally, make sure your tank is equipped with a pressure-vacuum relief cap.

Bits 'n pieces

We received a rather interesting letter to the editor from Warren Carver who served two non-consecutive terms as mayor of the City of Bay St. Louis. He comments on the recent study done by the city clerk on the possibility of combining the Bay tax collecting department with the county.

The mayor and some council members appear not to be seeing eye to eye on the issue.

The 1982 St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws will be sporting a new head coach in football for the season opener. Bay St. Louis native Vernon Powell, an assistant coach for the Rocks, moved-up to the top position this week.

We have known Vernon for many years, and we want to wish him a lot of luck. He is one of the most outstanding young persons of our community.

A star at Bay Senior High, Vernon is very talented and we are happy he has chosen to stay at home.

Many are still buzzing about the Farm-City Tour sponsored by The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, The Hancock County Farm Bureau and County Extension Service.

It was a very enjoyable and educational tour and will be remembered by all participants.

The lunch provided by the Farm Bureau and ice cold watermelons grown by the Ladner's Farms really hit the spot at noon.

Bill Whitfield, chairman of the event, should be congratulated on a job well done.

The last days to renew and start new memberships in the Mobile Medic Ambulance Service are closing very fast.

The deadline is July 31, and we, like many others, have kept putting off the membership renewal.

One thing is for sure, we urge all residents to become members of Mobile Medic. A family never knows when the service will be needed, no matter the age group.

A membership's cost is very small compared to a non-member using the service.

Big events get underway in Waveland this weekend with St. Clare's Church Fair activities.

The big fish fry in the Parish Hall will be Friday night, and we understand John Longo and his crew have been busy getting everything ready.

There will be some new items on the menu this year for the fish fry.

We hope many of you will visit the fair on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

We hear a lot about litter in our communities and the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce is trying to do something about it.

A brand new shipment of litter bags are now available at all drive-in windows of our local financial institutions.

We hope all citizens will use the litter bags and help keep our highways and roadways clean.

CONSUMER REPORT

A Service of the Consumer Protection Division of the Office of Bill Allain, Attorney General
P.O. Box 220, Jackson, MS 39205 (601-354-7130)

"WARRANTIES...GUARANTEES...AND YOUR RIGHTS"

Attorney General Bill Allain says that warranties and guarantees are the same thing - a manufacturer's or seller's promise to stand behind their product. However, there are various degrees of "standing behind" a product.

Allain states that a Federal law, the Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act, regulates those sellers who offer warranties on products costing more than $15. Under the Act:

- *Warranties must be easy to read and understand.
- *Warranties must be available for consumers to look at before they buy the product.
- *All warranties must be available for consumers to look at before they buy the product.
- A Full Warranty means:
 - *At the seller's option, a defective product will be fixed or replaced free of charge within a reasonable time.

- *Consumers will not have to do anything unreasonable to get warranty service (such as ship a washer back to the factory).
- *If the product cannot be fixed, the consumer gets the choice of receiving a new product or a full refund.
- *The warranty is good for anyone who owns the product during the warranty period.

A Limited Warranty is Anything that Provides less Coverage than a Full Warranty. A Limited Warranty May:

- *Covers only parts and not labor.
- *Covers only the initial owner.
- *Allow charges for handling.
- *Require you to return the product to the store.

Note: A product can have both a limited and full warranty. For instance: a television may have a full warranty on a picture tube, but only a limited warranty on other parts.

The following are a few general tips:

- *Read all warranties before making a purchase.
- *Make certain any verbal promises by the salesperson are included in the written warranty and signed by the salesperson.
- *Keep your sales slip and warranty. The slip may be needed to prove the purchase date or that you are the original purchaser.
- *Getting a good warranty when making a purchase can protect against future repair bills.
- *Products with full warranties may cost more than those with limited. However, it may be worthwhile to spend the additional money in order to acquire full protection.
- If you have any difficulties with your warranties or guarantees, contact your Attorney General Bill Allain, Consumer Protection Division, P.O. Box 220, Jackson, Mississippi 39205.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

For Sale sign on city hall may be good idea

Editor
The Sea Coast Echo
Dear Sir:

The proposal to eliminate the city's tax collection department and to transfer the function of that department to the county tax collector is based on good old common sense and a desire of its proponents to do something worthwhile for the citizens of our community.

Taxation has become so burdensome to the average citizen that the great majority of the country's public officials are searching in every possible way to cut expenses by means of layoffs, curtailment of certain services, and other ways and means of stretching the tax dollar.

But not in Bay St. Louis! When a proposal was made to eliminate the expenditure of some $41,000 from the city's budget, two councilmen voted their approval, two objected to it and the fifth found it impossible to attend the meeting.

One councilman's reason for opposing the proposition was: "Why vote for it, the mayor will veto it anyway."

The mayor's only known reason for his opposition is his fear that Bay St. Louis might lose its identity. (Whatever in the world that means). He says that if that proposal was to be adopted we might as well hang a "For Sale" sign on city hall.

Given the kind of thinking that seems to be taking place among those who voted against saving the sum of $41,000 yearly, the "For Sale" sign that the mayor fears might not be a bad idea.

Yours very truly,
Warren Carver

Changing values have spoiled the good old days

July 19, 1982
The Editor:

You are old enough to remember the good old days if you can remember when you went to church and the preacher preached from the Bible.

When a girl was a girl, a boy was a boy and you could tell them apart.

When the flag was a sacred symbol and the government stood up for Americans.

When everyone knew right from wrong.

When everything legal was right and everything wrong was illegal.

When people still had the capacity for indignation.

When people had less and still valued when 'you' had more.

When the poor were too proud to take charity.

When everyone was not entitled to an annual wage whether he worked or not.

When the husband supported his family while the wife stayed home and raised an honorable family.

When a man's word was his bond. When you bragged about your home town, your state, your nation, and your children.

When even the word 'socialism' was a dirty word.

When a nickel was worth 5 cents, and such ads as the following appeared in our newspapers—

Betty Botter bought butter, 25 cents a pound, sugar 10 pounds 45 cents, picnic hams 13 1/2 cents a pound, Kellogg's cornflakes, 16 oz., 2 for 15 cents, sirloin or T-bone steak 35 cents, beef roast 20 cents, beef brisket 18 cents, veal round 35 cents, lamb leg 25 cents and lamb shoulder 18 cents per pound.

This ad appeared in this paper Friday, July 17, 1931 and was placed by a Waveland grocer.

Age has begun to take its toll on my memory, but I am sure he could have added bacon, 10 cents, coffee 15 cents, rice and beans 3 or 4 cents, bread 10 cents, milk 10 cents. Oh yes, gas 18 cents or less and your Ford dealer would have sold you two brand new Fords for about $1,000.

When teachers' "smoke rooms" in schools hadn't been heard of.

When students were promoted on their ability and not social circumstances.

When teachers' annual salary averaged about $1,000.

When John and Jane came home from school in the afternoon and complained about disciplinary methods—usually a spanking—and parents didn't follow them to school the next morning to "whip" the teacher.

When Jane and Jim first noticed mommy getting "fat," and that is exactly what they were told—mommy is getting fat—pregnant? SH-SH, no, just getting fat.

Thanks,
Earl Lizana

Collection box vandalism a serious problem

To Editor
Sea Coast Echo
Dear Sir:

It's only a bag of clothes, or is it?

It was with a good deal of apprehension that I drove to Bay St. Louis last Thursday to meet with Judge John Chevis, Chief Douglas Williams and officials of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department. It was with a sense of relief and accomplishment that I have returned.

I am the executive director of Goodwill Industries of South Mississippi. It is Goodwill's mission to provide jobs for the handicapped and bargains for the general public in the Bay-Waveland area. We accomplish this task through the collection and repair of donated items. Our yellow Goodwill collection boxes are a vital link in our work.

Not unlike many Goodwill's in this day and age, we have problems with these collection boxes: (1) vandalism—a small, but significant amount; (2) littering—some box bites are used at times for trash dumps. The resulting complications could cause us not only to lose a bag of clothes, but perhaps a box location, and ultimately drive us out of an area.

After my meeting with public officials, media people and concerned citizens I feel confident that this will not happen in the Bay-Waveland area.

Two suspects were apprehended taking items from our Goodwill collection boxes. With the full support of the local law enforcement people, these individuals are now being prosecuted.

These same officials have assured me of their continued vigilance in the area of vandalism and littering around Goodwill boxes. We are especially grateful that, with so many demands on their time and limited resources, they have provided us with so much quality assistance.

Goodwill respectfully requests the continued support of the citizens of the Bay-Waveland area on our two problems of vandalism and littering. We pledge to continue to do all we can to serve the population. Your assistance continues to make it possible.

Jewelry heist suspect tells of Alabama arrest

Editor
Sea Coast Echo
Dear Sir:

Enclosed is a story you wrote for the Sunday issue of the newspaper.

I wish to point out to you that in the warrant against me I am identified as Robert Stewart, however in your newspaper article you chose to use my professional name, Bob Stewart.

As you do not know, I am a country music recording artist for Chain Records in Nashville, Tenn., and my newest record "I've Got Your Love All Over Me" is now being played on WJGR radio in Bay St. Louis.

You can confirm this with a telephone call to Jim Odom, station manager, at WXGR.

Therefore, the public use of the name Bob Stewart, as it is herein used, could hurt my ability to make a living and could invite a damage suit.

Moreover, what Sheriff Peterson failed to point out is I had been in contact by telephone with Alvin Ladner from my office in Nashville and at the time of my arrest in Athens, Ala. I was enroute to see him and Sheriff Peterson in Bay

St. Louis.

I was involved in a car wreck in Athens is why the Federal warrant was served. In your story it sounds like the FBI had to track me down, which was not the case.

Since the warrant was issued I've been on TV four times in front of 7,000,000 people each time. You can hardly say I was hard to find.

My new record release six weeks ago was mailed, along with pictures, address and my telephone number, to 981 country music radio stations nationally, and yet you make it sound like it took the FBI to flush me out of some hiding place—can you see my point?

I'm sure your story was based solely on the Sheriff's statement, but if you would in the future before you or anyone at your newspaper uses the name Bob Stewart, please check with me so at least you can have both sides of the issue.

Thank you very much for your time.

Respectfully yours,
Bob Stewart

Accident photos considered "tasteless"

July 22, 1982

To the Sea Coast Echo:

I was both horrified and appalled when I looked on page 2 of the July 22nd issue of your paper and saw the pictures you people felt it was necessary to print of the tragic accident that occurred on the Bay bridge on Saturday, July 19.

Those pictures were the most tasteless, abhorrent pieces of pictorial journalism I have ever seen printed in any newspaper.

The people involved in this tragedy have suffered enough without having to see pictures of their loved ones, either dead or in pain, splashed all over the page of a newspaper.

I only hope that, God forbid, anything of this sort should ever happen again in your area you will think twice before printing pictures of it.

"YOU FOLKS GOING TO DRILL FOR OIL DRESSED LIKE THAT?!"

House committee reports Vietnam vets aid bills

House Veterans Affairs Committee Chairman G.V. (Sonny) Montgomery (D-Miss.) reports that the full committee approved several bills that will enhance the lives of Vietnam era and disabled veterans, their dependents and survivors.

Among the bills approved for consideration by the House is H.R. 6782 which would grant a 7.4 percent cost-of-living adjustment in compensation for service-connected disabled veterans and to survivors of veterans who died as a result of service-incurred conditions effective October 1, 1982.

"This very important legislation is necessary since compensation rate increases to offset inflation are not indexed by law," he stated. "We place the highest priority on benefits and health care for our service-connected disabled, and getting this bill to the floor will enhance the lives of more than 2,600,000 of them."

Another measure approved, H.R. 6794, would make a number of changes in current law to strengthen training and employment programs for Vietnam era and disabled veterans.

Montgomery expressed concern that the unemployment rate for Vietnam veterans is currently at its highest level, with 685,000 of these younger veterans out of work.

"This severe problem affecting both Vietnam era and disabled veterans is a critical issue that must be remedied without delay," he stated.

In addition, the committee reported a measure allowing members of the Reserves and National Guard to attend active duty training beyond ninety days and still maintain their civilian employment.

H.R. 6788 extends this period to a maximum twelve months in any thirty-six month period.

Montgomery stressed that the bill is in keeping with changes in modern defense and weaponry systems, which often require more extensive training than the current ninety day limitation allows.

Finally, in further action the committee cleared for House action legislation cost-savings of $169 million in FY '83.

Montgomery said his committee was one of the first to fully comply with the mandate contained in the First Congressional Budget Resolution that assigned certain cost-savings levels to several House authorizing committees.

NEWS FROM THE GOVERNOR'S OFFICE

Sun., Aug. 8, has been proclaimed Children's Day in Mississippi by Gov. William F. Winter.

Noting that children "will be the contributors to and the designers of the future progress of Mississippi," Gov. Winter called upon Mississippians to help in preparing children "to become responsible and productive adults by providing quality education, by seeking to eradicate alcohol, drug, and child abuse and in various other ways encourage the total well-being of children."

Children's Day, he said, is designed to "have children realize that they are an important and vital part of today's and the future's society."

Many activities, such as community, church and business picnics, children's fairs and free or half-price admission to activities such as water slides and skating, are being planned across the state.

"Beyond activities to celebrate the day, I hope Children's Day will help us focus upon some specific needs of children and take appropriate action," said E. Budd Hughes, director of the Governor's Commission for Children and Youth.

"We are seeing an increase in child abuse and neglect," Hughes said.

Reported cases of child abuse and neglect involved more than 6,000 children in a recent year, and it has been estimated that for every reported case of child abuse, there are 25 others that are not reported.

"This abuse and neglect can adversely affect the individual long after he or she becomes an adult," he said, "and, in some cases, destroy some of our state's most valuable resources. Child abuse and neglect should have the attention of all Mississippians."

"Education of Mississippi children is a serious weakness," Hughes said.

Mississippi is the only state without an enforceable attendance law and has the highest school dropout rate in the nation. It's the only state without state funding for kindergarten, and 15 percent of Mississippi youth fall the first grade. The cost of re-educating first grade failures was $11 million in 1980.

The state has next to the highest illiteracy rate in the nation.

"I think it should be clear to all of us," Hughes said, "that better education deserves our support."

"Sometimes children's needs are so demanding that even the most well-equipped families are incapable of providing what they need. There are an estimated 25,000 mentally retarded and an estimated 48,000 disabled children in Mississippi. Over 30 percent of mental retardation can be prevented, and, from both a humanitarian and an economic point of view, it makes good sense to take every prevention step possible. It costs more than $500,000 to maintain one person for a lifetime in a state institution for the mentally retarded," he said.

"Of course, the needs of Mississippi's children cover many other areas, but," Hughes said, "my point is that the entire future of our state is affected by how we deal with our young people. The time and effort we invest in our children could be one of the best investments we can make in the future good life for all of us in Mississippi."

Cochran mobile office to visit Hancock Aug. 4

U.S. Senator Thad Cochran is dispatching his mobile office staff to Pearl River and Hancock counties on Wednesday, Aug. 4.

The Senator's mobile office staff will be at the Pearl River County Courthouse in Poplarville from 10 a.m. until 11 a.m., and at the Hancock County Courthouse in Bay St. Louis from 1 p.m. until 2 p.m. on Aug. 4.

Citizens who wish to stop by and confer with the Senator's mobile office should contact the Chancery Clerk's office for exact location, at the courthouse in their area.

"Anyone who has a concern about issues before the U. S. Senate, or who has a problem involving a federal agency, is invited to stop by and discuss the situation with my mobile office while they are in the Poplarville and Bay St. Louis areas," Cochran commented.

The Aug. 4 visits to Pearl River and Hancock counties are part of the mobile office program Senator Cochran initiated in order to help provide service to constituents at the local level in all 82 counties of the state.

ENERGY ANSWERS

Q: How good are the warranties on all the solar products I see advertised now? I need to know before I buy anything.

A: At a recent solar energy conference in New Mexico, a lawyer-engineer told participants that most photovoltaic warranties are not complying with Federal law. He urged manufacturers to reexamine their warranties and change them to bring them into compliance before unanswered consumer complaints began to make the industry look bad.

Among warranty violations cited were: not one of them specified to whom the warranty applied; most provided that non-conforming equipment would be repaired or replaced but did not say who would pay for what; some specified a date when they would take effect, and sometimes the date was different from the sales date; and none of the warranties listed the step-by-step procedure to follow to obtain performance on the warranty.

This lack of warranty specifics does not necessarily mean that solar warranties won't be honored, but it does mean that consumers should read warranties carefully and get the specifics included before taking solar equipment home.

Q: The Strategic Petroleum Reserve. How much oil is supposed to be stored up in it? How long can this reserve be expected to last?

A: The 250 millionth barrel of oil was reportedly put into the reserve last month. The ultimate goal for the SPR is 750 million barrels by 1990. The full amount is expected to last about six months during a major supply disruption.

Jury out in Sand trial

By BRENT MACEY

A verdict in the trial of former Bay St. Louis Police Officer Chris Sand could not be reached by 6:30 p.m. Wednesday and the jury was instructed to return today at 9:30 a.m. to continue deliberation.

Sand is charged with conspiracy to commit mayhem in connection with alleged attempts to have a Pascagoula man blinded or crippled for money owed to the former owner of the Driftwood Hotel in Bay St. Louis.

During the two days of trial, some six witnesses have been called to testify. Defense Attorney, William Frisbee of Bay St. Louis, noted in opening statements Tuesday that he would attempt to prove that Sand was working on an investigation for the Bay St. Louis Police Department.

He attempted to prove that Sand was attempting to set up Bobalia Bharatkumar—former Driftwood Hotel owner—so he could be arrested.

Testimony has revealed that during the time of the alleged conspiracy in July of 1981, Matt Karl, investigator for the department was on vacation. Chief Douglas Williams had suffered a heart attack.

Frisbee claims his client was in charge of the department. Sand, who testified Wednesday, noted the office was in a state of "chaos" during that week in July.

Prosecuting Assistant District Attorneys John (Sonny) Johnson and Robert Walker have attempted to prove that Sand was offered money to find someone who would blind the Pascagoula man for Bharatkumar.

Bharatkumar, a native of India, was evicted from this country following Sand's arrest last July, and did not testify.

Retired Air Force major takes his hobby seriously

"You're not going to get rich at it but it can pay for itself," said retired Maj. Jim Thompson, a former operations officer at Keesler Air Force Base who has been "hunting" for about 10 years.

Nearly $115 million in change is lost each year in the United States, according to Thompson who has unearthed 31,396 coins as of this writing.

His friend, retired Col. Dick Davis, former Keesler inspector general, claims he has found 2,000 items of value in the six months he has been hunting.

The primary instrument used in "treasure" hunting is a metal detector. You may have seen people using them and thought they were doing something else.

"People will come up to you and ask if you're spraying for bugs or trimming weeds," said Davis. "When you tell them you're treasure hunting, their interest becomes more intense."

Many people would jump at the chance to become involved in a hobby that is, apparently so lucrative. Many people have invested in equipment without knowing what to look for and have ended up disappointed and out an investment.

"Don't buy a detector unless it discriminates," said Thompson. "The better detectors have controls that allow you to eliminate the signal reflected by pull tops, foils and bottle caps."

Signals can be deceiving though. The feature that allows you to eliminate "junk" may cause you to lose certain coins. It's important to know your instrument."

According to Davis, the best places to "hunt" are where people have congregated. Old home sites, schools, battlefields, fairgrounds and parks are some of the best hunting grounds.

"Treasure" hunting is not allowed in national parks and some state parks, however. "Research pays off," added Thompson. "Find out where things used to be."

Serious "treasure" hunters adhere to a strict code that says they do not destroy the landscape. Once a find has been pinpointed, using the detector, the hunter will probe with an ice pick to further focus on the object. He'll dig around the find with a screwdriver (not a shovel) and once the find is pried from the ground, he replaces the sod.

A hunter will leave an area cleaner than he found it, taking aluminum cans and other refuse with him. "One of the most important things you'll want to do," said Thompson, "is get permission from the owner if you plan to hunt on private property."

For those who think they might like to join the increasing number of "treasure" hunters, Thompson recommends investing in a good metal detector, the one that is capable of discriminating.

These range from $130 to $350. He also suggests a scuff plate, a relatively inexpensive investment, to protect the detector's head. Earphones aren't necessary but they eliminate outside noise and contribute to longer battery life.

"Aside from the obvious rewards and the fresh air and exercise, it's darn good therapy for a retiree," said Davis. "It gives you something to look forward to getting up and doing."

Hancock public school registration set August 11-13

Registration at Hancock County Public Schools is scheduled for Aug. 11, 12 and 13 for students who did not attend Hancock County Schools last year or who did not pre-register during the spring.

Billy Sills, superintendent, said students may register from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. on these days.

In order to register, new students must have a health certificate of compliance which may be secured from the Hancock County Health Department or a local physician.

In addition, new students need to present a certified copy of their birth certificates, and it would be helpful to have records of grade placement. Busing routes will be essentially the same as last year.

The first day of regular attendance will be Tuesday, Aug. 17.

Students in grades 10, 11 and 12 are to report August 17 for class assignment.

Grades 7, 8 and 9 are not required to attend. Students in grades 7, 8 and 9 are to report August 18 for class assignment.

Grades 10, 11 and 12 are not required to attend.

Story Hour resumes August 5

The Hancock County Library System's regular story hour begins again Thursday, August 5 at 10:30 a.m. All pre-school children and their parents or teachers are invited to attend.

This week's story hour begins with the new book, 'I'm in Charge' by Joan Drescher.

A puppet pop up of 'The Little Red Hen' will be presented next. As a break between stories, the physical activity 'Pairs' will be performed.

Story hour will conclude with a filmstrip based on the book 'The Bear Scouts' by Stan and Jan Berenstain.

County Agent's Notes

by John Smith

FOOD PRICES LOW

Food prices are expected to gain only 5 to 6 percent this year. If this turns out to be true, it will be the slowest rate of increase since 1976.

This prediction is based on an expected small rise in the farm value of food and a slowdown in the rate of increase in middleman charges. Food prices did go up eight-tenths of 1 percent in May. But the increase was still a small part of the total 1 percent rise in the Consumer Price Index. Most of the gain came from higher gasoline and housing costs.

And despite the increase in the cost of living, many economists still look for an inflation rate of only 6 to 7 percent for the year. That compares with 9 percent in 1981 and 12 percent in 1980.

Most of the increase in May food prices came from higher retail meat prices. Pork rose 3.4 percent, beef 2.3 percent and poultry 1.4 percent in May. Fresh fruits were up 3.9 percent and fresh vegetables rose 1.1 percent.

Price gains in meat, fresh fruits and vegetables were mostly offset by declines in other food products. Egg prices dropped 7.8 percent, dairy products 2 percent and fish 4.1 percent. (Source: Dr. Bob Williams)

MOSQUITOES—COSTLY DISCOMFORT

For most of us, mosquitoes are just an uncomfortable itch. But for livestock and household owners, they're more than a simple nuisance.

Estimates on the effects of mosquitoes to human and animal health and the cost of control place mosquito damage at $13 million a year in the state.

Mosquitoes not only are discomforting and irritating, but they are carriers of several diseases, including malaria, yellow fever, encephalitis in humans and horses, and heartworms in dogs.

Mosquitoes need still water to develop. That's why you should move anything from the premises that holds water such as cans, bottles and old tires.

The best way to stop mosquitoes is to control the larvae. The more larvae controlled, the fewer adults it will be necessary to control.

Several insecticides are recommended for controlling both larvae and adults. As with all insecticides, read label precautions before using.

DON'T QUIT NOW, GARDENERS

Most of our gardeners have already harvested quite a few vegetables. That leaves some empty spots that you should replant with other crops to keep weeds from taking over the garden.

And don't wait until your vegetables are overripe before harvesting. Pick them as soon as they are ripe so they won't spoil before you eat or can them. FARM INCOME DOWN, BUT UP

It may be a long time before farmers nationwide enjoy the success of 1979, the last good year for farm profits. That year total farm income on a nationwide basis was $32.7 billion.

The latest estimate for U.S. farm income this year is $19 to $21 billion. That's a far cry from 1979 but it's still a little higher than last fall's pessimistic $17 billion estimate.

Things do look a little better now than they did earlier in the year. The main reason is lower inflation which has erased farm production costs. Some experts say expenses will be up only about 2 percent this year. If so, that would be the smallest rise since 1964.

Livestock producers are faring better this year. Pork prices are currently more than $20 higher than they were last December. And beef prices have improved.

Cotton prices are up several cents a pound from just a month ago after a hailstorm damaged about 2 million acres of cotton in Texas and Oklahoma. Other crop prices may also improve in the months ahead.

Better prices could be ahead for soybeans if there are weather problems this summer. U.S. soybean supplies are 3 percent below last year's levels. While that's not enough to create tight supplies, it could bring a price rally if weather lowers crop prospects.

The general economy holds a big key to farmer's economic future. When the economy improves, the effect should begin filtering through all of agriculture.

CUT ENERGY COSTS

How can you tell exactly what you save by turning down the thermostat on your air conditioner?

Here's a good rule: For every degree above 78 degrees you set the air conditioner thermostat, you pay 7 percent less on your electricity bill. For every degree under 78, you pay 7 percent more.

In other words, if you set your air conditioner at 80 degrees, you save 14 percent over the cost of operating it at 78 degrees. If you set it at 72 degrees, you pay 42 percent more than you would for a 78-degree setting.

Another way to save on energy costs is using a ceiling fan. There are plenty of brands to choose from, but you may not need one with more than three speeds. The big thing about a ceiling fan is that one blowing a 2.3 mile per hour breeze makes you feel 7 to 10 degrees cooler than you do in still air.

A ceiling fan helps in summer and winter. You can set the cooling thermostat higher in summer and still feel cool and set your heating lower in winter and still feel warm.

Have you ever "baked" ice cream without melting it, and turned out a delicious, master chef dessert to boot? Well, all you have to do is "insulate" the ice cream from the oven heat with a covering of thick, airy meringue - and you have that renowned "hot and cold surprise" dessert... "Baked Alaska".

This concoction, if memory serves me right, made its initial appearance at New York's elegant Delmonico's Restaurant in the eighties, and was named in honor of the then brand new territory of Alaska. And why so many cooks shy away from making it, is a mystery to me, for it's so easy to do.

I still chuckle at the memory of my two young sons, years ago, startled when they saw me putting the ice cream-cake in its meringue overcoat into the oven...they ran to their Dad, urging him to "come quick, mom's burning up the ice cream." They soon learned to enjoy this and other out-of-the-ordinary, though easily assembled gourmet treats.

All you have to do is start with a pound cake or sponge cake or other loaf cake. Cut a rectangular slice, to fit your platter and the appetites of your family and-or guests, and place it on a board topped with brown paper (you can use foil).

Meanwhile, make the meringue. Then place firm ice cream of your choice over the cake, not quite to the edges, cover quickly with the meringue, swirling it thicker than thick on the top and sides, so as to insulate the cake and ice cream.

Set the whole business in a hot oven (450 degrees) for a very, very few minutes, just till the meringue is golden brown, then slide it onto the serving platter at once and serve at once. (I find it easier to gently pull the Alaska, brown paper and all, onto the platter.)

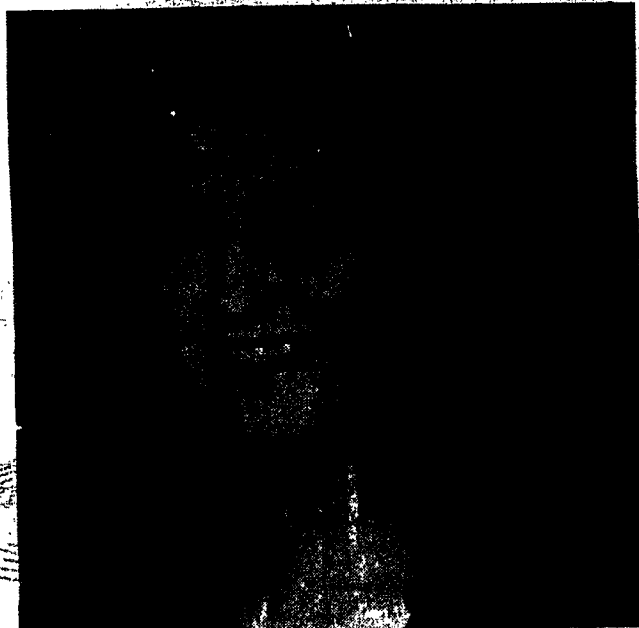

If you want more specific measurements, here's meringue for six:

Beat five egg whites till frothy, then add a dash (one-eighth tsp.) cream of tartar, same of salt, continue whipping till stiff, but not dry. Add the sugar (1 cup sifted confectioner's in all) a tablespoon or so at a time, whipping after each addition, and continuing to whip till the meringue stands in peaks. Spread on cake-ice cream as above, and finish.

A variation for dieters, and for summertime freshness is Grapefruit Alaska:

Halve and section the grapefruit in quantity needed, hollowing out enough space for a small scoop of vanilla ice cream, cover with meringue and bake at 450 to 500 degrees for just a little minute, till the meringue is lightly browned, or broil for just that same little sixty seconds.

BHS STUDENT—Michelle Anderson, 14, a Bay Senior High School senior and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson of 113 Blenville Drive in Bay St. Louis, recently attended Girls State at Hinds County Junior College in Jackson where students learned the operations of local, state and national governments. The girls formed a hypothetical state government in the week-long event sponsored by the State American Legion in which Anderson served as assistant secretary of state. National Realtors honor LeReta Rick John Phillips, Gulfport Board of Realtors president, presented LeReta Rick with a National Advisory Council charter membership pin at a recent board meeting at the Gulfport Yacht Club.

In a congratulatory letter to Mrs. Rick, National Realtor

Association president Julio Laguarda expressed his appreciation for her continued support of the advisory council.

He cited the impact that the work of the council has had on the public sector in that many of the council's proposals have been incorporated into Federal policy, such as, spending reductions and the sale of un-needed Federally owned real estate.

LeGuarda added: "Having an industry leader like you aboard as a National Advisory Council member means that we can confidently look forward to continued successes benefiting you and your fellow realtors, throughout the nation, as well as property owners."

Realtor Bob Sawyer gave a report on the "due on sale" clause in home mortgages.

Genevieve Varnado, Ole South Realty, was installed as a new associate realtor member.

An invitation to attend the August meeting of the Women's Council of Realtors at the Royal D'Iberville, Biloxi, was extended by Elaine Thornton.

Judge Ruble Griffin will be the guest speaker and will present a skit.

Carlyle Caruthers won the door prize.

Stieffel, Santa Cruz sail to Southern Regional win

Bay-Waveland Yacht Club sailors Randy Santa Cruz and Rod Stieffel won the Flying Scot Southern Regional Championship Regatta held at Fort Walton Yacht Club on July 24 and 25.

Santa Cruz and Stieffel, sailing double-handed in a normally three-man boat, competed in a fleet of 16 boats in the five-race series. Their finishes were 2-1-3-1-2.

Santa Cruz and Stieffel will next compete in the Flying Scot North American Championship Regatta on Buzzard's Bay in Massachusetts August 7-13.

Bay-Waveland's Junior Lipton team finished second overall in the Junior Lipton Regatta at Southern Yacht Club in New Orleans, July 17 and 18.

Skippers Ford Gaudin, Matt

Whita was handicapped early in the four-race series by a broken halyard, but nevertheless won fourth place overall in the 37-boat fleet. White's finishes were 12-4-1-5.

Being among the top five skippers in the Junior Championships, White qualified to compete in the Senior North American Southern Championships held later that week. He placed 25th in that 58-boat series.

The Race for The Case, which is the final race of Gulfport Yacht Club's Round the Sound Series for PHRF Handicap Class boats, was held July 24. Sixty boats competed in the race from GYC to the Biloxi Yacht Club pier.

BWYC's Basil Kennedy finished eleventh in the fleet. John Dane III of SYC took first place honors.

Other BWYC skippers participating were Gene Taylor, Carroll Gordon, and Lucien Gex.

The Race for The Case is a benefit for the Heart Fund.

Bay-Waveland Yacht Club Backwash

By Lea C. McIntosh

Stieffel, and Peter Merrifield placed fourth, third, and third in their respective races.

Crewing were Liz Merrifield and Michael White.

The regatta was won by the SYC team.

Elena Reeves and Susie Christensen crewed.

Ann Stieffel, finishing 2-3-1-3, took second place in the series. Peggy Chapman and Lea McIntosh were her crew.

In third place overall was Susan Worrell, sailing with crew LeeLee Worrell and Tracy Stieffel. Worrell's finishes were 3-2-3-2.

Weezy Kennedy, although finishing fourth, kept the competition tight throughout the series. Mary Ladner and Ellen Breath were her crew.

McKinney, Stieffel, and Worrell will represent BWYC at Pass Christian Yacht Club's Knost Regatta August 7-9.

Race Committee chairman for the Bay-Bourbon was Charles A. Breath III, assisted by Ray Stieffel, Ann Chapman, Charles A. Breath IV, and Chip McDill.

BWYC's Adam White traveled to Ft. Erie, Ontario, Canada, to compete in the Junior North American Sunfish Championship Regatta at the Buffalo Canoe Club July 11-16.

The Bay-Bourbon Regatta was sailed at BWYC July 24 and 25. Competition in this an-

Coast King of The Hill tourney set Aug. 20-21

The 1982 King of the Hill Tournament will be held at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum in Biloxi Friday and Saturday, Aug. 20 and 21 with contestants in the heavyweight and light heavyweight divisions fighting for $2,000 in prize money.

The announcement was made by promoter Billy Lyons of Biloxi who stated that many of the fight fans in the area have expressed interest in another contest.

Lyons also stated that a new crop of fighters have been inquiring when they can compete in a King of the Hill show. Contestants must be 18 years of age; have not competed in a boxing match within the past six months, and pass a physical examination.

Entry blanks may be procured at the King of the Hill office in the Factory Seafood Restaurant on East Beach in Biloxi.

Lyons stated that tickets will be on sale on or about Aug. 1.

Ringside seats will be $10; telescopic floor seats, $5, and general admission, $5.

Powell named SSC head football coach

Bay St. Louis native Vernon Powell is the new head football coach at St. Stanislaus High School.

Powell will replace Dr. Fred Weems, who is incapacitated due to knee surgery, according to Brother Louis Joseph, SSC athletic director.

This will be Powell's third year at St. Stanislaus. During the past two years Powell has served as head track coach and assistant football coach.

Weems served his first year as chief football mentor at the Beach Boulevard institution during the 1981 season.

He is also head coach in the school's baseball program.

The 26-year-old Powell said this week he is "very happy" about his new assignment.

"It's something I've worked for all my life and I'm happy to be at St. Stanislaus."

He noted pre-season training will begin within the next few weeks and the team will be working out in preparation for its first game.

In reference to the upcoming season, Powell noted he will be "taking each game as it comes."

"I'm there for the kids," he said.

"I'll be trying to get them into shape and develop a good attitude. I think if I can do that then winning will take care of itself."

Powell is a 1975 graduate of Bay High School where he played football and ran track.

In his senior year of high school he was named Most Valuable Defensive Lineman. In track he also won conference and district honors in the discus.

Powell graduated in 1977 from Pearl River Junior College where he played football as an offensive lineman.

In 1978 he received a bachelor of science degree in athletic administration and coaching from the University of Southern Mississippi.

Powell is the son of Mrs. Ordean Powell of Bay St. Louis.

He is married to the former Barbara Marchino of Bay St. Louis.

At St. Stanislaus he teaches math, life science and physical education.

Assisting Powell on SSC's coaching staff this year will be Dale Lojacano, David Richardson and Steve North.

Weems, who holds a PhD degree in physical education, remains as religion teacher and physical fitness coach.

FISHIN' TIPS

from... Tom Mann

"HOW ABOUT A WORM that because it blends with sky light glows in the dark?" This is a logical question from plastic worm fisherman, especially those who fish at night. So, let's shed some luminescence where there is darkness. We have experimented with all colors possible in plastic worms and while it's true that a luminous worm glows at night, after being charged from a flashlight or lantern, we have found that it doesn't catch any more fish than a plain black one. Black fish are better at night, also. Possibly this is because black makes a shadow, or silhouette, against whatever light there might be in the sky. Whereas any light color might be harder to see far more important than its color.

Watergate of Speedway to be reviewed on WTBS

Motorcyclist Bruce Penhall, a California native who admits he intentionally finished last in a qualifying race for the 1982 World Championships recently in London, was featured in a "Motorweek Illustrated" interview on July 17.

Penhall, who last year became the first American in 40 years to win the prestigious World Speedway Motorcycle Championship, touched off what some European media labeled the "Watergate of Speedway."

The incident occurred at London's White City Stadium in a quarter-final qualifying round for the 1982 World Championships. Having already scored enough points to advance to semi-final round qualifying, Penhall was pitted against three other Americans in the evening's next-to-last race.

Although favored to win the race easily, the American star intentionally finished last in that heat to enable Americans Dennis Sigalos and Kelly Moran to advance to the semi-finals.

The advancement of Americans replaced two British motorcyclists who would have otherwise moved on to the semis. Outraged by that action, some 30,000 British fans peppered the American riders with boos and beer cans.

Penhall, who grew up in the same neighborhood as Sigalos, told "Motorweek Illustrated" host Dave Despain that he has no regrets about the incident.

"If I were a British rider and my action has benefited two British boys, I'd have been a hero," Penhall said.

This "Motorweek Illustrated" exclusive is the first interview on U.S. television with Penhall about the incident, and will air Saturday at 4:35 p.m. on WTBS Hancock Cable's channel 7.

Communicating with dolphins

Dolphins sing their own song, but researchers in the Bahamas are trying to pick up the tune

When Chopper and Didi make noise, it's music to the ears of a certain group of sound specialists and marine researchers in the Bahamas. Chopper and Didi aren't performers in a new underwater singing group. They're Atlantic spotted dolphins that have made the acquaintance of a team of researchers looking to cross the communications barrier between man and animal.

Four years of study, described in the current issue of International Wildlife magazine, has been aimed at trying to play—and listen to—the dolphin's song.

Heading the research effort is Hardy Jones, former CBS journalist and the founder of the Living Ocean Society, a group that promotes further study of dolphins and the ocean environment. Jones not only knows individual dolphins by name, he believes he's made some progress in understanding the pulsating songs of these highly intelligent sea animals.

Spotters, or spotted dolphins, are one of about 50 species of dolphins worldwide, members of the group of marine animals Cetacea, which also includes whales. Similar in appearance to the bottle-nosed dolphin (the most common performer in marine shows), spotters have brains comparable in size to man's.

Studies of them and other species in the wild have been difficult, says the bi-monthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation, because wild dolphins are inaccessible.

But a treasure diver in the Florida Keys tipped Jones off to a school of dolphins that frequent a remote area of the Bahamas, far from land and unprotected from weather.

Jones first organized an expedition to observe them in 1978 for three days of diving and filming in an underwater laboratory of animal behavior.

That trip would prove to be a mere prelude to subsequent excursions over the next three summers.

Identifying individual animals—by observing fin configurations, color patterns and unique markings or injuries—was a first priority for the researchers.

"Didi" was a standout personality from the very beginning, said Jones, because of her signature whistle—a "di-di" sound she made whenever approaching the researcher's boat.

"Chopper" had a piece missing from his dorsal fin. Other dolphins were nicknamed "Baby," "Big-Eye," "Stubby" and "Patty Pectoralless."

The divers also identified a committee of senior males, which Jones dubbed the "Heavies," because these dolphins had the task of investigating and dealing with potential danger.

The Heavies were the last dolphins to be won over by the human intruders. Only on the researchers' third trip to the dolphin's home turf did the Heavies cast off their aloof attitude and mingle freely with the divers.

But the most spectacular observations of dolphin behavior came in Jones' most recent visit with the dolphins in June of 1981. They had to do with how the dolphin reacts to sound, the sense through which these animals get most of their information about the world.

Using a computer-driven generator, sounds based on recordings of the same school of dolphins were emitted into the underwater environment. "Put simply, we were trying to say (to the dolphins) 'We are able to hear you,'" wrote Jones in International Wildlife.

The dolphins heard the sounds and responded—mimicking first the sound and then the human noise-makers. As the researchers played a repertoire of ten dolphin noises, the dolphins sang back with duplicate sounds.

They then positioned themselves at the sea's surface and sank taildown until they "stood" on the ocean floor next to the researchers. Only on film replays did it appear that the dolphins may have been duplicating the human diver's feet-first descent to the ocean bottom. "They were clearly looking at us and mimicking our actions within a very short period of time. I felt it was a kind of experimental mimicry, duplicating some action to see how that action felt and perhaps what it meant," said Julia Whitty, an animal behaviorist who accompanied Jones on the expedition. Jones feels he has plenty more to learn. "Clearly we are only beginning to unravel the world of the dolphin, and my project is but a small first step," he wrote in International Wildlife.

"But what really moves me," he continued, "is the knowledge that there is a remote area of the ocean where I can go and find Chopper, the Heavies and Didi bounding over the waves to greet me."

Second Junior Players cast repeating 'Book of Spells'

The second cast of The Waveland Junior Players will repeat the presentation of "The Book of Spells" for two final performances Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday at 3 p.m. at the Civic Center on Coleman Avenue.

Director Dorothy Overal

will be showcasing the talents of a second cast in this weekend's performances because of a large turnout at pre-production auditions.

Ranging in age from 3 to 16, the richly-costumed cast consists of Bert Dean as the bored King Nicholas who finds a magic book with which he turns his long-suffering Queen Katrina (Nina Simpson), his son, Prince Peter (P. J. Maunfray), and daughter, Princess Irene (Anna Marie Dean) into animals.

The King's court—including the General (Derek Stechmann), Signora Pizicato (Jan Frommeyer), Suzy Crepe (Lisa McGill), and the Abbess (Alison Miller)—also falls victim to his inept magic.

When all is in chaos, Zozo, a wizardess (Juleigh Church) makes a dramatic appearance to offer the King a way out of his troubles.

Also appearing in the show are Tammy Bergeron, Jerry West, and Jamie Butsch as townspeople; and Shelley Dietrich, Jolie Fitch, Beth Stechmann, Brandi Bradley, and Aimee Geary as flowers.

Apprentice crew members are Kristin Ling, director, Anne Thomas-Hall, make-up, Melinda Miller, costumes, and Julie Schaeffer, props.

Also, Shane Rogers, Scott Mitter and Robbie Butsch, technical crew. Reception committee and ticket takers are Jennifer Mitter and Jennifer Burrows.

Adult advisors are Overal, Jeanne-Marie Bell, Frances Mitter, Piccola Dietrich, Marie Bernard (for her imaginative costumes!), Nan Bradley, Norma Simpson, and Tomyann and Russell Fitch. Tickets, which are $2, are available at the door or through Piccola Dietrich at 467-4666.

SUPERIOR SERVICE AWARD—Dr. Verne R. Schneider, project chief, Physical Models Project, was presented the Superior Service Award of the Department of the Interior by Dr. Robert A. Baker, regional research hydrologist, at NSTL's Gulf Coast Hydroscience Center. In the award, Dallas Peck, director, Department of the Interior, U.S. Geological Survey, cited Schneider for his exceptional contributions to the U.S. Geological Survey and the nation in advancing hydraulic technology and his ability to maximize use of unique hydraulic facilities. Schneider is responsible for the operation and maintenance of sophisticated facilities for the development of data for multidimensional models. These models describe such characteristics as backwater and discharge for the design of variety bridge abutments. These same facilities are used regularly for hydrologic instrument testing and evaluation and for the calibration of equipment for the national water resources operational data collection program. Schneider's expertise and guidance have been applied in nonroutine problems such as the disastrous Mt. St. Helens eruption. He serves as a representative on various scientific committees, including the World Meteorological Organization's Commission on Hydrology. Schneider resides at Pearl River, La., and has been employed at the Gulf Coast Hydroscience Center for the past 11 years.

ETV Brief

PRIME MINISTER
"Herself, Indira Gandhi," an in-depth profile of India's Prime Minister, will be telecast at 8:30 p.m., Friday, July 30, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

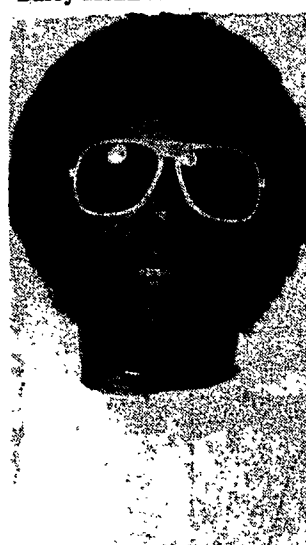

For the first time Mrs. Gandhi has allowed American cameras to record several weeks of her activities, providing a rare glimpse of the Prime Minister at home, at work and campaigning for her surviving son, Rajiv.

With archival footage and narrative, the program brings a historical perspective to the present reign of Indira Gandhi. The documentary traces her life, from her birth in 1917 through her turbulent childhood in which her parents were imprisoned for anti-British activity to her role as close advisor to her father, Jawaharlal Nehru, as he reigned over India.

She is also shown at home, as mother and grandmother, presiding over the family dinner and as a daughter reminiscing about her childhood as the heir to a political dynasty.

MUSIC FESTIVAL—Grammy Award winners Stevie Wonder, Quincy Jones and James Ingram along with Patti Austin and several other soul superstars will be featured in a Budweiser Superfest beginning at 7:30 p.m. Saturday Aug. 14 at the Louisiana Superdome in New Orleans. Tickets will go for $12.50, $15, $17.50 and $20. For information call 504-595-0601. The event is a Michael A. Rosenberg production in conjunction with Barry Mendelson Presents.

Area youths refresh reading skills in Community Action summer school

While most students in grades one through five may be frolicking at the beach or playing baseball for hours on end this summer, some 25 Bay St. Louis children have found going to school for a few hours each day may be equally as fun.

A five-week summer reading program has been offered at by the Community Action Agency on Third Street in Bay St. Louis.

Students who chose to attend are being taught a variety of skills all focused on improving reading ability.

Lucy Hazeur, administrator for the agency, noted the course attempts to refresh reading skills which may be forgotten during summer months.

Comprehension, listening skills, vocabulary, and recall are all stressed. Students who may have difficulties with reading are given assistance to overcome their problems.

A normal day begins at 9 a.m. Students may begin by doing exercises in a skill (work) book, where they read either orally or silently.

A film may be shown instead, and afterwards the children are questioned about the content of the movie, what the basic plot concerned, or who the main character was.

After a 10- or 15 minute break, where the children are allowed to play on the playground out back, they return to class and may conclude the day by reviewing a list of vocabulary words.

The day is short and ends at 11 a.m. Another class is offered to a dozen other students from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The students apparently like the two hour class.

"I like it better than school," 10-year-old Doral Nichols said. "It's shorter."

He noted he has learned different things he never knew before he started attending classes, including that the Olympics were started by the ancient Greeks.

Students who come to class apparently continue to keep coming even though they are not forced.

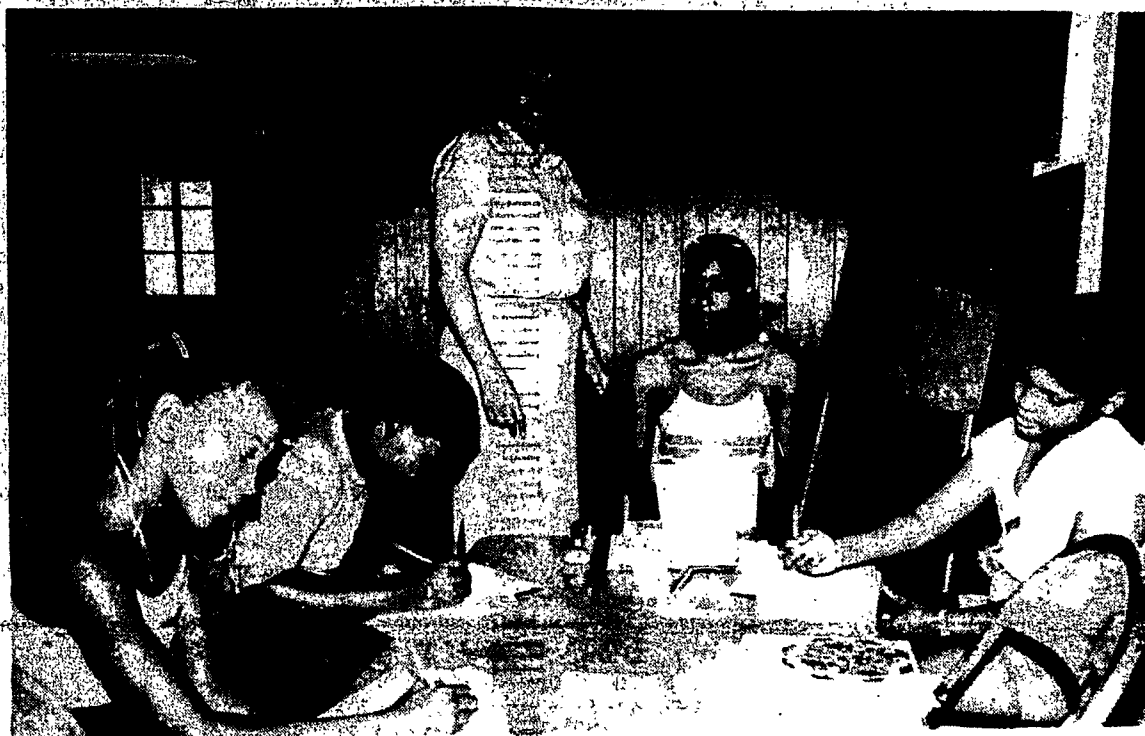

Hazeur noted one student had a tendency to be inattentive and distracted other students. When told he could stay home, "He said he didn't want to," Hazeur said.

"After that he really improved," she said.

Hazeur hopes the program will be continued next year. But funding from CETA, which employs one teacher for the purpose of providing job training, will be necessary if the program is to be offered next year.

Looking up from their studies are, clockwise from left, Taaya Lewis, Floyd Lewis, supervisor Mayola Haynes, Turkessa McGowan and Darius McGowan.

Christ Episcopal and First Baptist offer a week of Vacation Bible School

Six and seven-year-olds learning a new song at Bible school are, from left front, Kelly Staples, April Taylor, Crystal Mitchell and Vicki Reid; second row from left, Joshua Wright, Todd Barber and Ryan Schaeffer; third row from left, Gilly Chamberlain and Michael Hagensee.

Christ Episcopal Church and First Baptist Church in Bay St. Louis teamed up together recently to offer a week of Vacation Bible School for students from ages three to 17.

Classes were conducted at the First Baptist Church on Main Street in Bay St. Louis.

Bob White, director of the school, noted the youngest students, ages three to 11, attended classes from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. Twelve through 17-year-olds attended classes at night from 7 until 9:30.

White said the students were grouped into seven different classes according to age.

Each of the groups were given instruction in arts and crafts, singing, and the bible.

Depending on the age group, students learned different facts about the bible. In addition, older students at night learned about how to handle relationships at home between themselves and their parents, White said.

All the students attended a picnic at the end of the week. And on Sunday during a special service each student who attended the school received a certificate.

LEARNING TO WAIT

The ability to wait a while to have a need or a wish satisfied, to be good humored about delays, is one of the most attractive and endearing traits in an adult or a child.

Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter, points out that the quality of personality doesn't just suddenly happen when an individual reaches adulthood. It develops slowly from a beginning in early infancy. And, strange as it may seem, it develops in young children whose needs are satisfied. That is, the baby who is not frustrated learns to endure frustration.

A study sponsored originally by the National Institute of Mental Health indicated that there is a close relationship between the degree of pleasure a baby experiences during his feedings and the gradual development of his ability to wait. Feeding is important, because hunger is the strongest physical drive of a baby.

The study found that, as a baby learns to look forward to pleasurable relief from the tension caused by hunger, he gradually begins to put up with necessary periods of waiting—provided, of course, that in the beginning the delay is brief and bearable.

At the end of their first year, children who had had their physical and emotional needs adequately met showed increasing ability to pay attention to tasks and to handle test objects well. Introduced to activities such as fitting pegs in holes or dropping blocks into a container these children showed interest in the tasks and pleasure when they succeeded. Further, they were not too frustrated by failure.

In contrast, those children whose feeding experiences had been less pleasurable showed less interest, less patience and less concentration. Many showed anxiety about what was expected of them. The study is careful to point out that it is the repeated good or unhappy experiences that matter—not the occasional interference of teething, fatigue, illness or family stress.

As a child moves out of infancy and into early childhood, his ability to tolerate frustrations will continue to develop as his changing needs continue to be met.

Wise parents learn to recognize early signs of frustration in their child, and to relieve the child's tension before increasing frustration leads to loss of control, disorganized behavior or temper tantrums.

SCAFIDI ATTENDS

The University of Southern Mississippi offers over 100 workshops each summer and Bay St. Louis area residents were among those attending the Cognitive Style Assessment workshop. Participating was Brenda Britton Scafidi.

Infant frustration reflected in adult

This avoidance of frustration does not imply over-permissiveness. Rather, it results in setting realistic limits on behavior, and maintaining them consistently. A child can feel secure when he knows what to expect of his parents and what they expect of him.

Further, avoiding frustration includes recognizing the effects of over-fatigue or over-stimulation and protecting the child from these stresses when possible; providing pleasurable distracting substitutes for undesirable activities; and allowing the child freedom to grow into independence.

The emotional security provided by continued meeting of his physical and emotional needs frees the child from anxiety and uncertainty. Thus freed, he can concentrate on a task, wait his turn when necessary to meet the demands of cooperative play, and accept with reasonably good humor the inevitable disappointments of life.

The gradual maturing of these elements of the ability to wait prepares the child to meet successfully the social, behavioral and learning requirements of the schoolroom.

The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month-by-month. For more information on the social and physical development of children from birth to six years old, write to Growing Child, PO Box 620N, Lafayette, IN 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing.

Hairstylists announce new shapes for fall

Classic bobs and short shingled cuts have been updated with permed volume by hairstyling authorities of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association to complement the fashion world's emphasis on the 20s.

Labeled American Shapes, the new bobs are featured in medium and above the shoulder lengths. Short cuts feature modernized shingle shaping on the nape together with volumized tops.

Special effects lift hair volume off the scalp, creating graduated, free-flowing texture.

The popular bobs and shingled cuts of the 20s were the winning shaped of that decade. The influence of award-winning films about the 20s has created a fashion focus on winning looks for Fall-Winter, both in apparel and hair design," says Doris Williams, styles director for the association of 50,000 cosmetologists and hair stylists.

"The beauty of the volumized bob and short, shingled cuts is their versatility," says Williams.

They can be styled to reflect a 20s look or combed into fresh, new shapes that enhance architectural fashion shapes, the new mini skirts as well as over-the-calf dresses and riding pant looks of today.

To achieve the new textured looks on the bobs and shingled cuts, cosmetologists and hair stylists will be using clippers, thinning shears, razors and scissors, Williams explained.

Perming is described as a most important ingredient of the bobbed and shingled looks, allowing more versatility and newness.

Golden glistening adds special sparkle to the Fall-Winter American Shapes. Other fashionable haircolorings for the new season include polished lights, petal lights and color progressions.

The new American Shapes for Fall-Winter are especially designed for the active life and are perfect for winning athletic endeavors, including running and aerobic dancing. "The volumized styles fall back into place due to the endurance of today's new, innovative perming processes," says Williams.

The 20s influence also moves into male hairfashion looks for Fall-Winter, calling for a well proportioned American Shape.

Extra volume in the front allows the versatility of wearing the hair down over the forehead or swept back away from the face for a more formal look. The style can be worn with or without a part.

Additional volume in the male American Shape is achieved through special textured perming techniques.

American Shapes were premiered July 17-20 in New Orleans at the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association's Annual Show of Shows and convention.

Assisting Williams in the creation of Fall-Winter American Shapes are Coiffure Design Committee members Ann Bray of Huntsville, Alabama and Raymond Adams of Waco, Texas.

The three are members of the association's Official Hair Fashion Committee.

THE COUNTRY

MILE

Walking again has been popularized due to a new emphasis on physical fitness. And what a fine thing it is that more and more people are donning leisure clothing, comfortable walking shoes, and getting back around to self-propelling themselves for a mile or two on a regular basis.

While many do it strictly for exercise, there are countless aesthetic values that lay down the pathways ahead—especially for those that take on the country miles.

The country mile is more than an expression. It is a series of experiences. Come along with me and let's retrace a few country miles.

There were those as a youngster following in the brisk, enthusiastic strides of R. M. Callaway, principal of our elementary school.

Moody Callaway was an innovative educator transplanted from Lafayette County, Mississippi to the school system of Hinds County and the City of Jackson ultimately.

Callaway High School was named for this unusual man who took his pupils, with regularity on nature hikes along many country miles, showing them the yellow poplars with their crowns of yellow tulips and the habitat of the pillared woodpeckers that flew into our campus to be observed and shared by Callaway with his pupils.

The writer treasures each step along the many country miles in the wake of this idealogical leader.

There were the country miles of the boy squirrel hunter, tightly gripping a 16 gauge double barreled shotgun and he stalked quietly into range of a hickory tree in autumn in the predawn dimness to be in position when the first breakfast-hungry squirrel leaped with a swish of a branch into the nut laden tree.

The gunshot followed his progress until it preceded the climbing game a bit. A big bang interrupted the morning stillness in the woodland as a squirrel dropped to the leafy ground.

Then, one winter's night there were the never ending country miles between a back pasture and home following a big snow when the pickup truck wouldn't crank as we checked on our cows that snowy night.

The walk through the crunching snow totaled six miles as the moon gleamed brightly on the snowy earth. Midway home there was the giant red glow in the direction of Clinton to the south as a dormitory burned on the Hillman College campus.

It was an exiting woodland walk one Saturday around a woodland lake as a scoutmaster preceded this writer as a lad seeking good casting spots for bass.

Then, there is the unforgettable memory of the scoutmaster running along the path when he thought a striking bass splash was made by him falling in the lake, and his excitement when he learned it was a fish instead.

He taught me how to keep a taut line when the next monster jumped clear of the water with my lure in his mouth.

There, deep in the woods, trees had moss not only on their north sides but generally all around them—a fact that subsequently was to confuse me and create a wandering on my part for hours trying to find my way out of that swamp.

The scoutmaster, later as Major Murray Deever, was later to order the first contingent of U. S. troops across the Rhine in World War II.

Still later, a country mile in the Ruhr Valley of Germany, with post-war friends was to teach me the sweetness of wild strawberries along footpaths there in contrast to the bland ones of Mississippi due to varietal differences.

Playhouse. Curtain is 8:15 p.m. each evening for the fund-raising event designed to help pay for new ceiling fans in the theatre building. Tickets available at the door are $5 per person. Champagne and sodas will be available.

Summer musical Friday, Saturday to benefit theatre's ceiling fan fund

The Bay St. Louis Little Theatre will present a new musical review Friday and Saturday at the Boardman Avenue Playhouse.

Curtain time for 'A Fanfare' is 8:15 p.m.

The summer musical review is presented to celebrate the installation of several new fans for the comfort of the audience during the warm spring and summer months, according to a theatre spokesman.

The program presenting a selection of Broadway musical numbers has been arranged by the theatre group and features several regular favorites of the local stage and a group of new stars.

Champagne will be available during intermission each night.

Donation for the evenings' entertainment will be $5 per person.

Some foods reduce drug effectiveness

Certain foods and drugs don't mix. A society that has access to a wide variety of both needs to understand about these troublesome twosomes.

Eleanor Coats, a food and nutrition specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, says there are a number of specific food-drug interactions and people should become more aware of these potential problem combinations.

"Some foods people eat while taking drugs could make the drug work faster or slower or even prevent them from working at all," Coats says.

"Food and drugs usually interact in two ways—some drugs affect how much we eat or how our body absorbs or converts nutrients into usable form; the second way is that some foods affect how our body absorbs or excretes a drug," she noted.

Coats says it's important to know whether you should take the medicine before, with or after a meal. She says people also should know whether there are any foods to avoid while taking certain drugs.

"Sometimes people will mix a drug with fruit juice or cola drinks to mask the taste," Coats says. "This could be a bad practice because some drugs dissolve faster in acid and the result could irritate the stomach lining."

Coats has listed some typical questionable situations people confront with food and drug interactions. Among these:

—Jane's doctor prescribed penicillin for an infection. The directions read "take one capsule three times a day" but it doesn't say when to take it. Is the "when to take" important?

—"Antibiotics such as penicillin, tetracycline and erythromycin have the side effect of nausea, vomiting and diarrhea," Coats says. "This could lead to eating poorly or not eating at all. In addition, penicillin should be taken at least an hour before eating or two hours after eating. Food in the stomach delays the action of this antibiotic."

Coats says tetracycline should not be taken with milk or other dairy foods such as ice cream. She says calcium in these foods keeps this drug from being absorbed.

—Amy is concerned that her husband and child eat well and get a balanced diet. Amy is neglecting herself and eats poorly and irregularly. Amy has been taking the "pill" for five years. Lately she complains of feeling overtired and sluggish. Could the "pill" be causing that?

—Oral contraceptives or the "pill" interfere with the body's use of many vitamins, especially folic acid and vitamin B₆, Coats says. "Not getting enough folic acid can cause a type of anemia."

Coats says this is not usually a problem if a person is eating a good, balanced diet. But young women who are dieting and eat skimpy meals may develop deficiencies. She said this also includes teenagers who eat large amounts of snack foods high in calories but low in nutrients.

—Jack's blood pressure went sky high and his doctor recently put him on a low sodium diet. He can't have any salt added to his food. He's always complaining of indigestion and he chews antacid tablets all the time to settle his stomach. Is that a good practice?

"Even some over-the-counter drugs can present problems," Coats says. "Aspirin can irritate the stomach lining and interfere with vitamin C metabolism and increase the need for iron. Aspirin also can act as a blood thinner and can eventually lead to internal bleeding if it's taken over a long period of time."

She said antacids taken constantly over a long period of time can reduce absorption of iron and other minerals and vitamins.

"Also, most antacids are high in sodium. People who are taking diuretics (water pills) for high blood pressure or are on a low salt diet should avoid taking these antacids," she says. "They work against the blood pressure medicine."

Coats says these facts about food and drugs are not meant to alarm people, but to create awareness.

"Short term use of a prescribed or over-the-counter drug probably carries little nutritional risk, especially if people follow certain precautions," Coats says.

She offers a list of tips to follow to get the greatest benefits from drugs:

—If the doctor prescribes a drug be sure you tell him all other drugs being taken, including alcohol and OTC drugs.

—Be sure to understand "when" and "how" a drug should be taken.

—Be sure to tell the doctor of any side effects or unusual symptoms that occur.

—If taking a drug, don't drink alcohol without first checking with a doctor. Alcohol interacts with many drugs, mainly drugs taken for infections or allergies and sleeping pills.

—Read and follow the directions and warnings on all drugs.

—Eat a well balanced, varied diet every day.

To Your Good Health

By GEORGE RUDY
Regional Director
Department of Health and Human Services

It seems Americans have fallen victim to a disease called 'acronymitis.'

It's not dangerous to your health even if it may make you a little dizzy from time to time when you get an overdose. The dictionary defines 'acronym' as "a word formed from the initial letter of other words."

I added the 'itis' because it has gotten out of hand and has even become an infectious sort of thing in our language.

In Washington, D.C. it's a regular epidemic. It's rumored there are some lifetime Capitol residents who don't know what you're talking about if you ask directions to the Department of Transportation, but their eyes light up with recognition if you say "DOT."

The same applies to HUD, HHS, VA, and on down the list.

It occurred to me the other day that a lot of people probably would greet a reference to "PHS" with a blank stare.

In some cases, even when it's explained that 'PHS' stands for Public Health Service, they are still mystified. If you mention CDC, or the Centers for Disease Control, they may start looking around for a policeman.

Well, the truth is PHS and its components which include the CDC, the Alcohol, Drug Abuse and Mental Health Administration, The Food and Drug Administration, the Health Services Administration, the Health Resources Administration, and the National Institutes of Health, are costing you some of your tax money and you should know what you're paying for.

The Public Health Service has been around in various forms since back in 1798 when it was set up to operate marine hospitals for the care of American merchant seamen.

It's changed a lot since then, and today is charged by law to "promote and assure the highest level of health attainable for all Americans, and to develop cooperation in health projects with other nations."

In other words, PHS has just about everything to do with anything that concerns your good health.

It's job is to help States and your town with the development of local health resources; education for health professionals; improvement of the delivery of health services to you; conduct and support of medical research.

PHS also keeps you, as well as health professionals, informed about health developments; keeps unsafe and impure drugs, foods and cosmetics off the shelves; and provides national leadership for the prevention and control of disease.

The Public Health Service is part of the Federal Department of Health and Human Services.

They're not very noisy at PHS. You don't see them in the headlines very often. I think the reason for that is that they are too busy figuring out ways to help you live longer and feel better while you're doing it.

As a matter of fact, you may be alive, well, and reading this article because of some of the things that the men and women working there have accomplished.

You hardly ever hear about the Nobel Prizes (that's plural...as in many) that have been awarded to scientists working for, or funded by, your Public Health Service.

It's a federal agency where you are really getting your money's worth.

Let me give you a few examples. As I already mentioned, one of the components of PHS is the Centers for Disease Control (CDC).

It hasn't always been known by that name. It actually started right after the begining of World War II as the Office of Malaria Control in War Areas (you guessed it, MCWA).

Malaria was still a major problem in the Southeast United States, so the offices were located in Atlanta, Ga. so scientists would be close to their work.

It quickly expanded into research and prevention of yellow fever, typhus, and tropical diseases being imported into this country by returning military personnel and prisoners of war held in the United States.

When the war ended, the need was seen for a continuation of work in disease control. The scientists were already there, and an effective working relationship had been established with State health departments.

Renamed the Centers for Disease Control, it provided highly specialized single-location services and abilities that few individual States could afford to maintain on their own.

Among their other work in research, the CDC developed the Epidemic Intelligence Service, or "disease detectives" that instantly respond to attack any kind of epidemic anywhere in this country, or in the world.

The people at CDC work closely with other health units including the World Health Organization.
